

Much of the forecast period is quiet as our focus is on unsettled weather later today into Saturday thanks to a transient low. For now, expect a tame day with sun to start, followed by increasing clouds and possibly a few afternoon showers (mainly late) as the disturbance approaches. Look for showers to peak this evening and again during the day tomorrow. While there's really no clear break, it looks like the second wave of activity peaks near midday into part of the afternoon (including a few storms about) and decreases in coverage late as the system pivots out. Certainly by evening, things quickly wind down. The remainder of the holiday weekend is then quiet as temperatures moderate near seasonable.

HAZARD OVERVIEW
Hazard	Fri	Sat - Sun	Description
Severe Weather	None	None
Flooding	None	Minimal	Perhaps isolated poor drainage issues in urban spots tonight into Saturday with a heavier shower or storm. Any issues stay localized
Coastal	None	Low	High tide Midnight Sunday may reach 1' above normal, just prone spots would be affected (see https://coast.noaa.gov/slr/ for details)

NEAR TERM FORECAST
Precip Probability
Friday	Sun to start but clouds quickly move in through the morning. Maybe a stray shower arrives early afternoon..otherwise main showers become a risk after 3 or 4 PM, increasing in coverage toward evening. 45% chance for a Trace - 0.10" of Rain (Late day) High 70 - 74 S to SW winds 5 - 10 mph
Fri Night	Overcast as showers turn briefly widespread in the evening (could be a few embedded rumbles of thunder). Showers then taper to patches of fog and drizzle overnight. 0.10 - 0.25" of Rain (Locally higher in any downpour) Low near 60 Winds lighten and turn variably SE <5 mph

SHORT RANGE FORECAST
Saturday	Plenty cloudy with scattered showers and a few storms developing mid-late morning and continuing through the day. Rain tapers back late in the afternoon. 0.10 - 0.30" of Rain (Locally higher in any storm) High around 65 NE winds 5 - 15 mph
Sat Night	A few leftover showers end before Midnight, then staying mostly cloudy. Low around 50
Sunday	Partly sunny. High around 65

MEDIUM RANGE FORECAST
Monday	Intervals of sun & clouds. High around 70
Tuesday	Decent amount of clouds around. Watching for perhaps a passing shower. High around 70

